

Don't miss REIT opportunities

By MarketWatch

Last update: 9:43 a.m. EDT Oct. 9, 2007

BOSTON (MarketWatch) -- David Trainer, president of New Constructs, an independent research firm in Nashville, Tenn., says that investors should try to avoid getting caught up in big industry trends and should look instead for where the market "has things the most wrong, in terms of buys and sells."

In a radio interview with Chuck Jaffe, MarketWatch senior columnist, Trainer noted that many investors have soured on real estate investment trusts right now and yet they are missing out on the few positive stories in that business.

Trainer noted that there are several REITs on the monthly "most dangerous stocks" list produced by his firm, but that Boston Properties (BXP) had managed to make the firm's "most attractive stocks" list, proving that there is more to any industry than headlines and labels.

Aside from Boston Properties, Trainer suggested that investors buy First Marblehead (FMD) , Odyssey Re Holdings (ORH) and RC2 (RCRC) . He put sell ratings on Oplink Communications (OPLK) , Electroglas (EGLS) and Alkermes (ALKS) .

 Listen to the highlights of Your Money with Chuck Jaffe.

Jaffe's radio show regularly features expert reviews of stocks and mutual funds suggested by MarketWatch readers; to request a stock or mutual fund for review, send your name, hometown and the ticker symbols that interest you to Chuck Jaffe.