

3-Year Average Return on Invested Capital: Explanation & Examples

Return on invested capital (ROIC) is not only the most intuitive measure of corporate performance, but it is also the best. It measures how much profit a company generates for every dollar invested in the company.

3-year average return on invested capital (seen in Figure 1) provides additional insights into a firm's track record of prudent capital management. Companies with a high 3-year average ROIC consistently allocate capital to high return investments

Properly calculating ROIC, the primary driver of stock prices, is key to measuring a firm's ability to generate returns on the capital invested in its business. Our Robo-Analyst technology allows us to perform the diligence needed to calculate an accurate ROIC and comparable metrics, such as , 3-year average ROIC, ROGIC and GAAP-based ROIC.

$$\text{3-Year Average NOPAT} = \text{Average NOPAT over trailing three years}$$

$$\text{3-Year Average Invested Capital} = \text{Average of the average invested capital over trailing three years}$$

We make it easy for clients to leverage the benefits of a high quality ROIC model and see a clear picture of a firm's true profitability. Figure 2 shows the Russell 1000 companies with the highest and lowest 3-year average ROICs.

Apple's 210% 3-year average ROIC is the highest of all Russell 1000 companies under coverage. See Apple's 3-year average ROIC each year dating back to 2010 here.

Mastercard (MA), United Therapeutics (UTHR), Gilead Sciences (GILD), and Manhattan Associates (MANH) earn the second through fifth highest 3-year average ROIC. However, a high 3-year average ROIC alone doesn't mean a company earns an Attractive-or-better rating. Apple and Mastercard both earn a Neutral rating. See Mastercard's 3-year average ROIC each year dating back to 2010 here.

Nutanix Inc. (NTNX) earns the lowest 3-year average ROIC of all Russell 1000 companies under coverage. NTNX has earned a negative ROIC each year since going public in 2015. ServiceNow (NOW), ACADIA Pharmaceuticals (ACAD), Intercept Pharmaceuticals (ICPT), and Splunk Inc. (SPLK) round out the five lowest 3-year average ROIC's across the Russell 1000.

ServiceNow, a previous Danger Zone pick, has failed to earn a positive ROIC or 3-year average ROIC in any year since going public in 2012. 3-year average ROIC has actually declined from -45% in 2014 to -55% over the last twelve months. ServiceNow's strategy of revenue growth at all costs has been a clear destruction of shareholder value. See NOW's 3-year average ROIC since 2014 here.
